

Name That Book!

Trivia Game

Use these sentences from the Grades 3-5 current Sunshine State Young Readers Award Program for a great trivia game!

Nerd Camp by Elissa Brent Weissman

“But this wasn’t just someone at school, this was his new brother- the brother he’d been hoping for forever – thinking he was like Paul or Margie. He wanted Zack to like him, “so being a geek is bad?” he asked. Zack cracked up. “Dude you are so funny! “Get this. This kid in my class, he’s such a nerd that he wants to keep going to school over the summer.” (p. 18, HB)

“What’s Pi day?” asked Nikhil. Gabe and Wesley gaped at each other through their glasses. “You’ve never heard of Pi day?” Gabe asked “It’s March 14th, so three-fourteen, like three point one four, which is Pi. On my math team we celebrate it every year. “We celebrate it in school,” Wesley said. “We sit around in a circle and eat pies.” “Mmmm.” (p. 42, HB)

Once he’d signed up he didn’t back down. Not when David pulled him aside at dinner and asked him to confirm his choice on the sign-up sheet, and not when he was the only boy in the “Try new hairstyles’ room. (p. 110, HB)

“Whatever,” said Jenny. “You’re the one breeding lice and feeding them to keep them alive while the rest of the camp is trying to kill them and wondering why they keep coming back. (p. 144, HB)

“Yeah because it’s ... what do you call it ...” Wesley thought “it’s not fish, but it’s from the ocean. But it’s dried. You use it to wrap sushi. It’s like, you know that green stuff that floats in the ocean.” “Seaweed?” said Gabe. “Yeah! It’s dried seaweed. Try it. It’s so good.” (p. 196, HB)

“He removed his towel to reveal his suit: a tiny, tight fitting Speedo. He heard the crowd behind him gasp. He could hear some of the boys laughing and could sense the girls pointing, He didn’t even want to Think of Amanda’s reaction. But he could also see that his competitors were nervous. They knew he meant business. “No fair” complained the red swimmer, he’s got so much less friction. (p. 210, HB)

“I wasn’t as scary as you! The leaves were moving and you were making noise, Why did you say ‘go away’?” I was talking to the branches. They were everywhere! Gabe used the edge of his paddle to push the knot of branches down. “Try to go forward he said. (p. 20, HB)

“And Color War. All that happened here, at”-he looked at the drawing of SMARTY, GEEK, AND EGGHEAD-“at this camp?” Gabe nodded proudly. “And I didn’t even write to you about some of the best parts. Come on, I’ll tell you at lunch.” (p. 248, HB)